CALL FOR PAPERS

South-South Development Cooperation Chances and Challenges for the International Aid Architecture September 26-27, 2014 at Heidelberg University

The development landscape is increasingly characterized by new development partnerships in the framework of South-South Cooperation. The development activities of the so-called “emerging donors” are rapidly growing in importance and question the existing Western-centric aid architecture. In order to discuss these developments from the perspective of different disciplines and research methods, we invite interested researchers to send in proposals for presentation at the interdisciplinary workshop on “South-South Development Cooperation.”

The workshop will be hosted by the Research Center of Distributional Conflict and Globalization at Heidelberg University. The workshop will bring together economists, political scientists, sociologists, geographers and other researchers, giving them a forum to present their research on South-South Development Cooperation. The goal of the workshop is to stimulate the exchange of ideas and discuss research in a relaxed atmosphere.

Keynote Speakers and Confirmed Participants

Emma Mawdsley, Senior Lecturer at the University of Cambridge and author of the book “From Recipients to Donors: Emerging Powers and the Changing Development Landscape”

Bradley Parks, Co-Executive Director of AidData and Research Faculty at the College of William and Mary

Michael J. Tierney, Associate Professor of Government and International Relations at the College of William and Mary
