2. حمير تاريخ اليمن القديم, بول يول / Paul A. Yule, Himyar/Late Antique Yemen, Aichwald 2018, ISBN 978-3-929290-36-3.
Second, enlarged and corrected Arabic-English edition of the German-English book published in 2007.
3. Himyar Spätantike im Jemen, Beiheft/Late Antique Yemen, Supplement, Aichwald 2018, ISBN 978-3-929290-##-#
This bilingual booklet updates the book of 2007 regarding Himyar.
4. W.Y. al-Tikriti–P. Yule (eds.), Water and Life in Arabia Conference, Abu Dhabi, 2017a, Walīd Yāsīn al-Takrītī–Pōl ‘Alīn Yūl (taḥrīr), ḥaṣād ‘u mu’tamari il-mā’i wa-l-ḥayāti fī šibhi l-ḡazīrati l-‘arabiyyati (14–16 kānūn ‘awwal 2014), ḥay’atu Abū Ḍabi li-s-siyāḥati wa-t-ṭaqāfati, ISBN 978-9948-427-45-2.
Reformulation and representation of the chronology and chorology of the falaj M46 and its dependent settlements.
5. M. Gaudiello–P. Yule (eds.), Mifas Bahri, a Late Aksumite Frontier Community in the Mountains of Tigray, Survey, Excavation and Analysis 2013–6, Oxford, BAR International Series S2839, 2017b, ISBN 978-1-4073-1579-9.
URL: <https://uni-heidelberg.academia.edu/paulyule/Papers-Arabia>

Report on the excavation and survey of a church of the 7th century CE in the southern Tigray region of Ethiopia. This mountain site contains the ruin of a substantial building constructed of bright red dressed ashlar.

6. Old South Arabian Coins in European Collections, discontinued.

This monographic study re-evaluates the Old South Arabian coins in European collections by means of the study published in 2003 by S. Munro-Hay. It has been discontinued because the finds do not derive from archaeologically verified sources.

7. Archaeological Research in the Sultanate of Oman, in: Der Anschnitt Beiheft 28, Bochum 2015a, ISBN 978-3-86757-009-1.

URL: <https://uni-heidelberg.academia.edu/paulyule/Papers-Arabia>

This monograph contains studies begun by Gerd Weisgerber and his colleagues; deals with 2nd and 1st millennia BCE sites in the Sultanate.

8. Cross-roads – Early and Late Iron Age South-eastern Arabia, Abhandlungen Deutsche Orient-Gesellschaft, vol. 30, Wiesbaden 2014a, ISBN 978-3-447-10127-1, ISBN E-Book: 978-3-447-19287-3.

The archaeological contexts and artefacts of the Early and Late Iron Ages of the United Arab Emirates and Sultanate of Oman are juxtaposed.

9. Late Antique Arabia Zafār, Capital of Ḥimyar, Rehabilitation of a ‘Decadent’ Society, Excavations of the Ruprecht-Karls-Universität Heidelberg 1998–2010 in the Highlands of the Yemen, Abhandlungen Deutsche Orient-Gesellschaft, vol. 29, Wiesbaden 2013a, ISSN 0417-2442, ISBN 978-3-447-06935-9.

Final synthesis of the fieldwork at the Ḥimyarite capital, Zafār.

10. Himyar–Die Spätantike im Jemen/Late Antique Yemen, Aichwald 2007, ISBN 978-3-929290-35-6.

Anon., Universitäts Pressestelle, Universität Heidelberg

R. Hoyland, Bull. Soc. Arabian Studies 13, 2008, 48

K. Lewis, JAOS 129.2, 2009, 9

D. Mahoney, Jour. Near Eastern Studies 70,1, 2011, 178–9.

This new account of the history, religion, art and economy of Late Antique Ḥimyar is aimed at an educated readership. It is based on the excavations at Zafār (one of the largest sites in Arabia) and includes a body of new visual materials, mostly in colour. Not an excavation report, it synthesises archaeological, epigraphic and historic sources. The book offers a new tripartite chronology for the history as well as one for the visual arts.

11. P. Yule–K.K. Muhammed–S. Simon, Report on al-Baleed Pottery, Reference Collection

D. Potts, Bibliotheca Orientalis (BibOr) 59, 2002, 644–7

Final report of excavations at Samad al-Shan and other sites in the Sultanate. The cemeteries in Samad are the most intensively and extensively researched objects in central Oman for the late pre-Islamic period. This work documents the artefactual finds and their contexts. It includes a new reappraisal of the history and sociology of the late pre-Islamic history and archaeology. The main study object is the Samad Late Iron Age, but in order to define it, one must extract its find inventory from the preceding ones. Relative and absolute chronology attempted. Summaries in English and Arabic. It includes the skeletal analyses carried out by Manfred Kunter. The original research documents are archived in the German Mining Museum, Bochum.

URL: <http://www.journals.uchicago.edu/doi/abs/10.1086/422297>

Catalogue study of the largest hoard find of copper artefacts to date from the Near East, most of which derive from the Early Iron Age. It complements the archaeological evidence from Samad al-Shan, which was researched parallel to it. The finds appear to have been stashed in an Umm an-Nar period tomb by robbers perhaps still in the 1st millennium BC.

Rev.: Haerinck, AJA 107, 2003, 122–3

Studies presented for the Samad assemblage and Iron Age in the South Province Ḥafār. The final report for the late Early Iron Age cemetery at Bawshar appears. The excavation records had remained unpublished for nearly 20 years. The discovery of the Late Iron Age finds at ‘Amlā’ and al-Baruni/Samaʿil established interconnections with the late pre-Islamic sites to the north in the U.A.E. Finally, the mythical builder of the tower tombs was investigated.

Intensive study of the definition of diorite and gabbro as stones used for royal imagery in early Mesopotamia. The study rests on close-up photos taken of statues in the Louvre and field samples from Oman. This same stone exists in Iraq. The stone of the statues derives from a variety of sources and it heterogeneous.

Comprehensive catalogue with good documentation and analysis of the provenance and use mostly of metallic hoard artefacts based on European research models. Four regional hoard areas are defined in terms of artefact type. The author distinguishes recoverable from non-recoverable hoards as a means of interpreting the meaning of these finds. Few hoard finds, if any, show use wear. Most are ergonomically useless as tools and weapons. The original documentation for this research is archived in the Peabody Museum, Harvard University.

After an interval of several years, the author completed the corpus of prehistoric copper hoard finds from India begun in 1980. Newly discovered hoard artefacts are published, mostly from the eastern part of India and Madhya Pradesh. The first large published group of modern quantitative analyses of the alloys of the artefacts provide a broad basis for a better understanding, especially of the Indian copper hoards.

This report documents the excavation in 1971 of a metals period cemetery in Orissa. This site yielded very elaborate ground lithics, metallic objects and human osteal remains. They are the first such finds to come to light in India since the discussions of R. Heine-Geldern regarding his Austronesian culture.

Some of the most attractive ground lithics known derive from a burial site at Sankarjang and appear to belong to a lithophone, a musical instrument similar to a xylophone, but made of stone. These stones are documented in order to substantiate the explanation.
