

Data Protection Policy

The operators of these pages take the protection of your personal data very seriously. We treat your personal data confidentially and in accordance with statutory provisions and this privacy policy itself.

The use of our website is usually possible without providing personal information. As far as on our sides personal data (for example name, address or E-mail addresses), this is always done as far as possible on a voluntary basis. These data will not be disclosed to third parties without your explicit consent. Please note that data transmission on the Internet (for example, communication via e-mail) always comes with security risks. Complete protection of data from being accessed by third is thereby not possible. As a user, you will receive, at your request, free information about which personal data has been stored about you. If your request does not conflict with a legal obligation to retain data (eg data retention), you are entitled to correct incorrect data and to block or delete your personal data.

Cookies

Currently we do not use cookies on our website.

Server log files

The provider of the pages automatically collects and stores information in so-called server log files that your browser automatically sends to us. These are:

Browser type and browser version

used operating system

Referrer URL

Host name of the accessing computer

Time of the server request

These data cannot be assigned to specific persons. A combination of these data with other data sources is not made. We reserve this data to consider retrospectively, if we are aware of any concrete indications of unlawful use.
