Heidelberg University Examination Rules and Regulations for the Bachelor's Degree Programme
– Specific Section – in Slavic Studies

of 26 March 2015

On the basis of section 32 of the Act on Higher Education of the Land of Baden-Württemberg (Landeshochschulgesetz – LHG), last amended by the Third Act on the Amendment of Higher Education Law Provisions (Drittes Hochschulrechtsänderungsgesetz – 3. HRÄG) of 1 April 2014 (Official Register (Gesetzblatt - Gbl.) of 8 April 2014, p.99), the senate of Heidelberg University resolved the following examination rules and regulations - Specific Section - for the Bachelor's degree programme in Slavic studies on 24 March 2015.

The President gave his consent on 26 March 2015.

§ 1 Applicability of the General Section

The Heidelberg University examination rules and regulations for the Bachelor's programmes in modern languages and literature studies at the Faculty of Modern Languages - General Section -, as amended, form an integral part of these examination rules and regulations.

§ 2 Subject of the academic programme

- (1) The subjects of the Bachelor's degree programme in Slavic studies are the Slavic languages and literatures from their beginnings to the present day in the context of their historical development, societies, and cultures as well as their theoretical principles. Essentially, the academic programme comprises the following curriculum: Based on sufficient language proficiency - the linguistics and literary studies of the chosen sub-disciplines (languages) as well as an overview of the entirety of Slavia in language, literature and culture. The Slavic languages comprise Old Church Slavonic, Bulgarian, Macedonian, Serbian, Croatian, Bosnian, Slovene (= the South Slavic languages), Czech, Slovak, Upper and Lower Sorbian, Polish, Kashubian (= the West Slavic languages), Russian, Belorussian, Ukrainian (= the East Slavic languages), and the now extinct Elbe and Baltic Slavic languages (Polabic, Pomeranian, and Slovincian). In Heidelberg, students may enrol for any combination of all three subfields (East, West and South Slavic); if Russian studies (accounting for 50% of degree, B version) is chosen, Russian is mandatory. The following languages are available: Russian, Polish, Czech, Serbian/Croatian, and Bulgarian.

- (2) Based on its broad offer of Slavic languages to choose from, the Heidelberg Bachelor's degree programme in Slavic studies focuses on extensive language training.

§ 3 Programme structure and possible combinations

- (1) The academic programme is structured in accordance with § 3 para. 2 of the General Section of the Bachelor's examination rules and regulations. The required modules and affiliated courses are listed in Annex 1.
- (1a) Part-time study is allowed in the Slavic studies Bachelor's degree programme.
- (2) At Heidelberg University, the Slavic studies degree programme is offered as a major subject (accounting for 75% of the degree, 113 CP), as a minor subject (accounting for 25% of the degree, 35 CP) as well as a 1st or 2nd major subject (accounting for 50% of the degree, 74 CP); all variations have 2 versions: Version A encompasses the study of two Slavic languages, version B specialises on Russian studies.
- (3) The academic programme is composed of a basic stage (1st and 2nd semesters), an advanced stage (3rd and 4th semesters), and a specialised stage (5th and 6th semesters). Within these stages, the academic programme is split into three different areas, respectively: Language acquisition, research and scholarship, and Interdisciplinary Skills.
- (4) For the major subject (75% option), a combination of any two of the Slavic languages set forth under the last sentence of § 2 para. 1 must be chosen; 1st or 2nd majors (50% option) must equally choose two languages (however, Russian is mandatory for version B "Russian studies"), and minors (25% option) must choose one language. Language acquisition mostly takes place during the course of the basic and advanced stages. Majors (75% option) complete both the linguistics and literary studies modules of the research and scholarship modules. Equally, the specialised module requires that the two main seminars be completed in both special fields, covering both chosen Slavic languages. In the 1st and 2nd major subject (50% option), version A entails a specialisation on either linguistics or literature studies already during the advanced stage, version B "Russian studies" requires that students complete both special fields in Russian. The minor subject (25% option) provides for a research and scholarship module with a freely selectable focus on either linguistics or literature studies, combined with extensive language training in a Slavic language. To complete the academic programme majors (75% option) must, in addition to the Bachelor's thesis, complete a written examination, which covers the curriculum of the research and scholarship modules.
- (5) The orientation examination is held during the course of study. For majors (75% option) and 1st or 2nd majors (50% option), the examination consists of the successful completion of the research and scholarship basic module.

Successful completion of either of the two introductory courses requires sitting a 90-minute written examination, which must be graded "sufficient" (4.0) or better. These examinations assess whether the student has understood and studied the curriculum in theory and has developed the skill to apply it in practice. In the minor subject (25% option), the orientation examination consists of the successful completion of the language acquisition basic module.

- (6) Generally, courses and examinations are held in German; However, examinations and courses may also be held in a Slavic language.
- (7) The Heidelberg department of Slavic studies encourages spending time in the relevant Slavic countries¹. A study abroad semester or year may generally be taken at any point during the course of study. Any of the course types or modules of the degree programme described herein may generally be completed at a university abroad and may be recognised in accordance with § 7 of the General Section of the Bachelor's examination rules and regulations. It is recommended that students consult the responsible student advisor in good time.

§ 4 Requirements for admission to the Bachelor's thesis

In accordance to § 13 para. 3 of the General Section, admission to the Bachelor's thesis requires the submission of additional certificates:

1. Proof of the successful completion of the basic and advanced modules in research and scholarship and language acquisition set forth under Annex 1, and
2. proof of proficiency in English (generally at least five years of school study) at B2 level as defined by the Common European Framework of Reference. Proof may be furnished by means of the university entrance qualification certificate and/or equivalent certificates.

§ 5 Bachelor's thesis

- (1) The Bachelor's thesis is written in literature studies or linguistics and based on an academic course from the advanced or specialised research and scholarship modules.
- (2) The Bachelor's thesis must be written in German.

§ 6 Final examination

- (1) Slavic studies majors (75% option) must sit a written final examination in the research and scholarship field.
- (2) The subject matter to be assessed by the written final examination is taken from the special field that is not covered by the Bachelor's thesis.

- (3) The written final examination lasts 3 clock hours; 8 credits are awarded for the corresponding work and study load.
- (4) Further details are subject to § 18 of the General Section of the Bachelor's examination rules and regulations.

§ 7 Calculation of the subject grade

To calculate the subject grade pursuant to § 19 of the General Section, all grades of the advanced and specialised modules are combined. The grade of the written final examination is weighted by a factor of 2.

§ 8 Entry into force

These examination rules and regulations come into force on the first day of the month following publication in the President's bulletin. They simultaneously supersede the Heidelberg University Examination Rules and Regulations for the Bachelor's Degree Programme – Specific Section – in Slavic studies of 19 July 2011 (President's bulletin dated 30 August 2011, p. 851, amended on 18 April 2012 (President's bulletin dated 21 May 2012, p. 409).
